三、克漏字測驗【請依照段落上下文意，選出最適當的答案】

第一篇：

Air pollution is a severe problem –one that we ignore at the risk of our health and our economy. Smog hangs heavy over Beijing, Shanghai and Hong Kong, 36 children grow up with asthma and other respiratory illnesses. Of particular concern is PM2.5 (37 with an aerodynamic diameter less than 2.5 μm) air pollution. In Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Xi'an, PM2.5 concentration levels in all four cities exceed World Health Organisation (WHO) air quality guidelines. This means 38 health risks to the cardiovascular system, cerebrovascular system and an increase in the probability of cancer and premature death. If the four cities had effectively controlled PM2.5 levels and 39 WHO air quality guidelines in 2012, the number of premature deaths would have decreased by at least 81%, while the economic benefits of reducing these premature deaths in the cities would 40 875 million USD.

第二篇：

Shortly after 10 p.m. on April 14, 1865, actor John Wilkes Booth entered the presidential box at Ford's Theatre in Washington D.C., and fatally shot President Abraham Lincoln. 41 Lincoln slumped forward in his seat, Booth leapt onto the stage and escaped through the back door. A doctor in the audience rushed over to 42 the paralyzed president . Lincoln was then carried across the street to Petersen's Boarding House, where he died early the next morning. Lincoln was the first president 43 in U.S. history. Why did Booth do it? He thought it would aid the South, which had just surrendered to Federal forces. It had nearly the opposite effect, 44 Lincoln's plans for a rather generous peace. Booth did not act alone. This “ wanted ” poster appeared everywhere, offering a reward for the arrest of Booth and his 45 . The conspirators were all captured, and Booth was shot while trying to escape from Union soldiers.

四、閱讀測驗【請依照段落上下文意，選出最適當的答案】

Workers digging a well outside the city of Xi'an, China, in 1974 struck upon one of the greatest archaeological discoveries in the world: a life-size clay soldier poised for battle. The diggers notified Chinese authorities, who dispatched government archaeologists to the site. They found not one, but thousands of clay soldiers, each with unique facial expressions and positioned according to rank. And though largely gray today, patches of paint hint at once brightly colored clothes. Further excavations have revealed swords, arrow tips, and other weapons, many in pristine condition. The soldiers are in trenchlike, underground corridors. In some of the corridors, clay horses are aligned four abreast; behind them are wooden chariots.

The terra-cotta army, as it is known, is part of an elaborate mausoleum created to accompany the first emperor of China into the afterlife, according to archaeologists. Ying Zheng took the throne in 246 B.C. at the age of 13. By 221 B.C. he had unified a collection of warring kingdoms and took the name of Qin Shi Huang Di—the First Emperor of Qin. During his rule, Qin standardized coins, weights, and measures; interlinked the states with canals and roads; and is credited for building the first version of the Great Wall. According to writings of court historian Siam Qian during the following Han dynasty, Qin ordered the mausoleum's construction shortly after taking the throne. More than 700,000 laborers worked on the project, which was halted in 209 B.C. amid uprisings a year after Qin's death.

To date, four pits have been partially excavated. Three are filled with the terra-cotta soldiers, horse-drawn chariots, and weapons. The fourth pit is empty, a testament to the original unfinished construction. Archaeologists estimate the pits may contain as many as 8,000 figures, but the total may never be known. However, Qin's tomb itself remains unexcavated, though Siam Qian's writings suggest even greater treasures.

(2)46. What is the purpose of this article?

- (1) To introduce how Qin Shi Huang had finished his elaborate mausoleum before his death.
(2) To provide information about the terra-cotta army buried to keep Qin Shi Huang's company.
(3) To persuade the readers that Qin Shi Huang was a great emperor in China's history.
(4) To explain why Qin Shi Huang wanted to build this elaborate mausoleum.

(3)47. Where were the terra-cotta soldiers and horses excavated?

- (1) From the tomb of Qin Shi Huang. (2) From the Great Wall.
(3) From three archeological pits. (4) From the unfinished pit.

(1)48. According to the passage, which statement is NOT true?

- (1) The tomb of Qin Shi Huang was excavated by workers digging a well outside the city of Xi'an in 1974.
(2) Qin Shi Huang standardized the Chinese units of measurements such as currencies, weights, and measures.
(3) The Great Wall was first built by Qin Shi Huang.
(4) Qin Shi Huang succeeded to the throne when he was 13 years old.

(3)49. The word “ aligned ” in the first paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.
