四、閱讀測驗【請在下列各題中選出最適當的答案】

第一篇：

You may not think of coffee as a healthy drink, but recent research shows that it is. In fact, coffee is good for the heart. According to nutrition scientists, drinking one or two cups of coffee every day works best to prevent heart diseases because coffee contains something called antioxidants, which help blood move more freely.

Coffee has other benefits in our life, too. If you have a bad headache, try a cup of hot coffee. Coffee has caffeine in it, and would work as a natural painkiller. Want to have better memory for school or work? Again, drink some coffee, and both the caffeine and antioxidants give you a clear brain and a better focus.

Too much cream and sugar in coffee, of course, may certainly increase your calorie in-take and thus your weight and make coffee look unhealthy. But black coffee or coffee with just a little bit of cream and sugar can go a long way in keeping you healthy.

Researchers also discovered that dark chocolate is great for the body. Like coffee, it has antioxidants and protects the heart. But do you know it also protects the skin? Cocoa, the main ingredient of chocolate, works as a shield against UV rays, which can be very harmful and even cause skin cancer. In one study, two groups of people spent the same amount of time in the sun: One group drank a chocolate drink for some time, and the other group did not at all. The results showed that those who drank chocolate had less sun burns than those who didn't.

Dark chocolate also releases a chemical in the brain that makes people feel good, so it can ease stress and anxiety and prevent depression. Next time you want a good snack or drink, it may be a good idea to go for the healthy C's!

(3)41. What is the main purpose of this article?

- (1) to report the latest research on the risks of a drink and a snack
- (2) to compare the good and bad things about a drink and a snack
- (3) to introduce and recommend the benefits of a drink and a snack
- (4) to break the myths and clear the names for a drink and a snack

(4)42. Which of the following effects CANNOT be achieved by drinking coffee?

- (1) Your headache could go away.
- (2) You may learn and remember things better.
- (3) You are less likely to have heart attacks.
- (4) You can lose a lot of weight.

(1)43. What does the phrase “go a long way” in paragraph 3 most likely mean?

- (1) be sufficient and helpful for certain time and purposes
- (2) be slow and time-consuming to achieve a wanted effect
- (3) be creative and surprising as no one ever tried before
- (4) be difficult and strict for people to carry something out

(2)44. Which of the following facts about dark chocolate is true?

- (1) It contains lots of cocoa but no antioxidants.
- (2) It makes you less tense and worrisome.
- (3) Its anti-UV capability has no scientific proof.
- (4) It gives you less sun burns if you apply it on your skin.

(3)45. What do “the healthy C's” in the last paragraph refer to?

- (1) confidence and convenience
- (2) concise and compelling
- (3) coffee and chocolate
- (4) caffeine and calcium
- (2) They change it by promoting more positive gossip.

第二篇：

In northern Thailand, right at the border of Myanmar, lives a tribe of Karenni people called Kayan Lahwi. The Kayan have become well-known for the striking appearance of their women wearing brass rings or coils around the neck that make it seem to be long and stretched and their head floating on top.

How did the tradition start? Some say the rings would offer protection from tiger attacks that often aim for the neck. Others speculate that it would keep rival tribes from abducting the women by lessening their beauty. But the most common reason is the beauty and pride in putting emphasis on the women's necks as a long neck symbolizes grace and wealth to the Kayan people. However it may be, many tourists travel to northern Thailand every year to see the so-called “giraffe women.” And this has become a great source of income for local governments and an opportunity for the women to sell their artisan crafts.

But many of the Kayan men and women are not allowed to leave these artificial villages without a Thai ID card, and as they are Burmese civil war refugees fleeing into Thailand, they cannot apply for one to build up a future elsewhere. Without legal citizenship, they have limited access to water, electricity, infrastructure, health care and education. No schooling is offered to them above 6th grade, and a visit to the hospital is not affordable for the small wages they make by selling handicrafts to tourists.

An estimated 40,000 tourists per year pay between US$ 8 to 16 each person to stop by these tribes to gaze upon the women's unusual look and take pictures with them. Unfortunately, the entry fees are rarely dispensed to the villagers directly, but instead they receive an allowance of food and toiletries and profits from handicraft sales. Even though women wearing brass rings earn an extra salary, in fact the coils often cause injuries to their back and neck. But without health insurance and easy access to hospitals, many cannot but chew betel nuts and leaves for pain relief and become highly addicted.

(4)46. Which of the following is true about the Kayan people?

- (1) They are Thai aborigines who want to invade Myanmar.
- (2) They are also known as the "giraffe tribe" or "giraffe people."
- (3) They chew betel nuts and leaves because of an ancient tradition.
- (4) They are Burmese who moved into Thailand to avoid war.

(3)47. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a possible reason for Kayan women to wear neck rings?

- (1) protecting women's necks against tiger strikes
- (2) making women uglier to turn their enemy tribes off
- (3) paying respect to a giraffe god that saved their tribe
- (4) making women look pretty and rich with a long neck

(2)48. What is indicated about the tourism in the Kayan tribal villages?

- (1) Few tourists come to visit because the villages are close to a war zone.
- (2) Tourists need to pay to see and photograph with the neck-ring-wearing women.
- (3) The Kayan people get a big share of the money from the entrance fees.
- (4) The Kayan women usually have more income by selling their neck coils.

(2)49. Which of the following is NOT true about how the Kayan people are treated in northern Thailand?

- (1) They live in particularly made villages and mostly cannot leave at their own will.
- (2) They have enough water and electricity but have very little health insurance.
- (3) They can receive education only till they finish elementary school.
- (4) Many of them cannot get a Thai ID and move to somewhere else.

(1)50. What could be the best title of this article?

- (1) The intriguing tradition and the sad situation of the Kayan people
- (2) The neck coils worn by the Kayan women: Their origin and functions
- (3) Cast away: How the Kayan refugees fled to and live in Thailand
- (4) A model of cultural tourism – the revival of the Kayan neck rings
